CAS CONNECTIONS

Spring Term | Issue 24 | April 6, 2026

FROM THE DEAN

Greetings, CAS Community,

I hope this latest edition of CAS Connections finds you enjoying the onset of spring and able to experience a sense of renewal and possibility, even as the world may feel heavy.

As Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, I'm fortunate every day to bear witness to the good works of my colleagues in our CAS programs as they engage in research and educate our students to meet the world's challenges, improve our lives, and cultivate a more humane world. The efforts and results are inspiring, and we truly get to see what "acts of love and education" can achieve.

I take this phrase—"acts of love and education"—from Joseph (Jojo) Mapp, the Director of the City of Chicago Office of Re-Entry, which provides support for people released from prison as they re-integrate into society so they have opportunities to contribute their gifts in meaningful ways. Jojo spoke just last week on a panel on campus, "Reclaiming Justice: Education, Incarceration, and Human Rights," that was part of the CAS's Human Rights themed semester. During the panel, Jojo reflected on his own experience of incarceration, relating how it was gang members in prison who showed him love and recognized his abilities. They lobbied for him to have the opportunity to participate in the education programs in the prison, which have limited space. The love from his community in prison and the educational opportunities he accessed to cultivate his talents and abilities were what enabled his success and positioned him to serve the public good upon his release.

I see these acts of love and education every day at NEIU and invite you to join us in this mission. In turn, I invite you to ask us for whatever support we can offer with our resources to assist missions of love and education in which you're engaged in your communities.

I'll conclude these greetings with one more invitation to find inspiration in community and song:

Please join the NEIU CAS community to learn about human rights and SING IT LOUD! Join Music Department students for their choral concert and add your voice to songs of resistance and activism. This event will take place at the wonderful International Servant Leaders Museum in Morton Grove, so it's also an amazing opportunity to get to visit and support the Museum. It's FREE to attend, but we do ask that folks register for the event. We hope to see you there! There will be food, refreshments, and a silent auction with wonderful items, such as theater tickets, restaurant gift cards, sporting event tickets, and more!

I guarantee you'll feel better singing, or just listening, with a community sharing a common desire for a humane world.

All the best,
Tim Libretti

STUDENT HIGHLIGHT

Lizzy Millen

Studio Art, Education

Minor in Child Advocacy Studies

What is your current major?

I am a double major in Studio Art and Education (K-12) with a minor in Child Advocacy Studies.

What are your career goals?

I honestly feel like I'm still figuring this part out, and I am curious where my studies will take me. I initially came back to school to be able to get a job as an art teacher, and I probably will do that. But as I study here I realize that I have a lot more options that didn't necessarily seem possible before. I would love to continue my education after getting my bachelors and see where that takes me. I am passionate about education, creation, and caring for others. I know and trust that my studies and dedication to what I am passionate for will carry me forward to a very challenging and rewarding career in my future.

What do you like about NEIU so far?

There are a lot of things I like about NEIU and I am honestly pretty proud to be studying here. One thing I really appreciate about NEIU is that the professors/instructors here are really passionate about what they are teaching and truly want their students to succeed. I transferred here after bouncing around from a few different colleges, and NEIU is the first university that I've been to where it feels like the educators are truly invested in their students.

The student media board here is pretty awesome too. There are some sweet opportunities for students to get involved in something really special here, so I'd definitely like to encourage other students to check that out. The student run newspaper is looking for more writers. There's a sound studio and all sorts of other cool stuff. We have a legendary local radio station in the basement here and it has kinda been my lighthouse. I DJ here at the WZRD, every Saturday afternoon, and it is such a blast. Tune in (88.3fm) sometime, anytime, all the wizards rule.

Any fun facts we should know about you?

I have a very active imagination and am creative. I like making art, telling stories, and exploring different creative mediums. I make little creatures out of clay, draw silly pictures, and like to try new things. I also like to read, watch movies (especially horror/mystery), and hang out with my loved ones. I also really enjoy being outside, luckily there are some woods nearby campus that have a nice trail to walk. Looking forward to some warmer weather!

ALUMNI HIGHLIGHT

Đr. Lazar Ilic

B.A. Geography

Minor in Political Science

M.A. Geography & Environmental Studies

What did you study at NEIU and what did you do afterwards?

I am actually a so called double alumnus – I think that is the term that the previous department chair used for people who got two separate degrees. One degree was the BA in Geography with a minor in Political Science and summa cum laude honors. The other degree was the MA in Geography and Environmental Studies. I also got a certificate in GIS from NEIU. While I do not have the data, I believe that I was NEIU's youngest recipient of a bachelors degree. I moved to Ottawa, the capital of Canada, and I finished my PhD in Geography.

What are you doing now?

I am currently teaching at the University of Ottawa, as a part-time professor. Currently I have two classes which together have almost 200 students. This upcoming summer I will be teaching a course on Suburbs and Suburbanization.

Can you tell us more about your experience with your studies at NEIU?

I spent a significant amount of time at NEIU because I would sometimes commute for over an hour to get to campus. One semester I had class in the morning and then after several hours had another class in the late evening. So, I definitely spent a lot of time on campus.

I remember great lectures/classes from professors at NEIU. Most were in G&ES. A number were in Political Science, and a few were in Chemistry.

I feel that the classes were good not only because they gave credits towards a diploma. They provided meaningful material and transferable skills that impact one beyond simply the studies. Perhaps some takeaways could be called life lessons. The professors were caring people and they put students first.

When one spends a significant amount of time somewhere, one is likely to form some attachment to that place. Perhaps even a sense of home. NEIU, for me and for others I am sure, was a sort of home away from home... especially the G&ES department.

I would also add that I appreciated the diversity that the campus brought. There were students from all walks of life (different ages, different classes, different backgrounds) and their diversity of thought that they brought to classrooms was indeed beneficial.

Do you have any advice for current students?

I will answer this by continuing from where I left off. As one encounters different opinions, one might not encounter opinions which they agree with. For instance, in one moment someone on campus was disagreeing with me about viruses. They firmly believed a falsehood, that viruses are alive. It is common knowledge that they are not as they do not have the basic elements of life, but I guess that one bit of advice is to not judge a person based on difference of opinion and to have patience with anyone.

Education has changed since I was at NEIU. These days AI has really changed how people go about their everyday lives for better or worse. I think that it is important to maintain academic integrity and one way to do that is to avoid certain uses of AI for as I have seen many times, it leads people astray. It often produces incorrect information and has dragged many people down.

Not to sound like advertising... but... I would strongly recommend taking some classes at the Geography and Environmental Studies department, in part because of the transferable skills and excellent teaching. For example, Professor Grammenos was a fantastic and unforgettable orator, compressing so much knowledge in his classes and providing an outstanding example of how good lecturing should be.

I would also suggest to current students to not look at the Bachelor's degree as the end of studies. Be curious and be open to keep learning throughout your entire life. That might entail picking up a book to read, enhancing certain skills, or even taking a course after graduating.

Is there anything else that you think is important that we have not asked?

Finishing the Master's degree at NEIU was not easy. I had fallen out of status due to no fault of my own. Being an illegal immigrant was not a pleasant experience, and I did not speak to people much about this. NEIU and the G&ES department became a sort of not so visible lifeline without them knowing that... a place to go to in times of difficulty. I did not seek help or ask for anything in particular, but the environment was comforting, from the facilities such as G&ES labs and other study spaces, to some other places on campus.

We all have gone along various pathways which entail experiences that shape who we are today. During my time at NEIU I have gained valuable insights which influence both my teaching and my everyday life beyond the classroom.

FACULTY HIGHLIGHT

Dr. Cindy Voisine
Professor of Biology

What are your research interests?

My research curiosity comes from my interest in understanding human disease. What happens to our bodies when we get cancer, Alzheimer's disease or Tuberculosis? What is going wrong in our cells? To answer these questions, I use a microscopic nematode called Caenorhabiditis elegans. Believe it or not, we are remarkably similar to worms on the cellular level. My research team at NEIU uses this model organism to tease apart molecular mechanisms that underlie human diseases. We often employ genetics, cell biology and behavioral studies to figure out how the worm changes when challenged with disease related proteins. My hope is that studying this simple nematode will lead to treatments for these devastating diseases.

What is your favorite thing about NEIU?

My favorite thing about NEIU has to be the students. The small class sizes and interactive labs allow me to get to know students scientifically and personally. I appreciate building these relationships and helping students figure out what is next for them after NEIU. As a first generation college student, my professors were the ones that helped me navigate the college experience and prepare for my future career. NEIU offers an environment where I can get to know students and work with them to achieve their goals.

What are your hobbies?

Growing up in the woods of northern Maine, I spent my free time doing outdoor activities like hiking, canoeing, snowshoeing or just sitting by the side of a lake with friends and family. I still love the outdoors but now that I live in Chicago, I spend my free time exploring this dynamic city. I enjoy walking around all the different neighborhoods and absorbing the personality of a place. I love traveling and have found ways to blend this hobby with science. My scientific journey introduced me to so many international scientists/friends that are happy to invite me to give a seminar at their institution or work with their research team. This makes it easy to mix work with pleasure!

Staying the Course for Human Rights: From Awareness to Action

a College of Arts and Sciences themed semester

SPRING 2026

What is a themed semester?

A themed semester is a collection of classes, events, and activities that focus on a particular topic. Some classes will be heavily focused on the topic, while others add a unit or special activity to bring it in to an existing class.

Why human rights?

In this political moment, paying attention to human rights is critical. We need to be aware of what is going on in the world around us and educated on our rights so that we can forge the best path forward.

Who benefits?

Everyone! You can learn to protect yourself, your community, and your world if you are educated about and aware of human rights.

What are my human rights?

In 1948, the United Nations adopted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. It set out, for the first time, fundamental human rights to be universally protected. These rights are listed below, or you can go to bit.ly/UNHumanRights to learn more.

How do I participate?

You can participate in our themed semester by taking a class on our list or attending an event we are hosting. Click the button below for an up-to-date list of everything included in the themed semester, or email cas@neiu.edu with questions or comments.

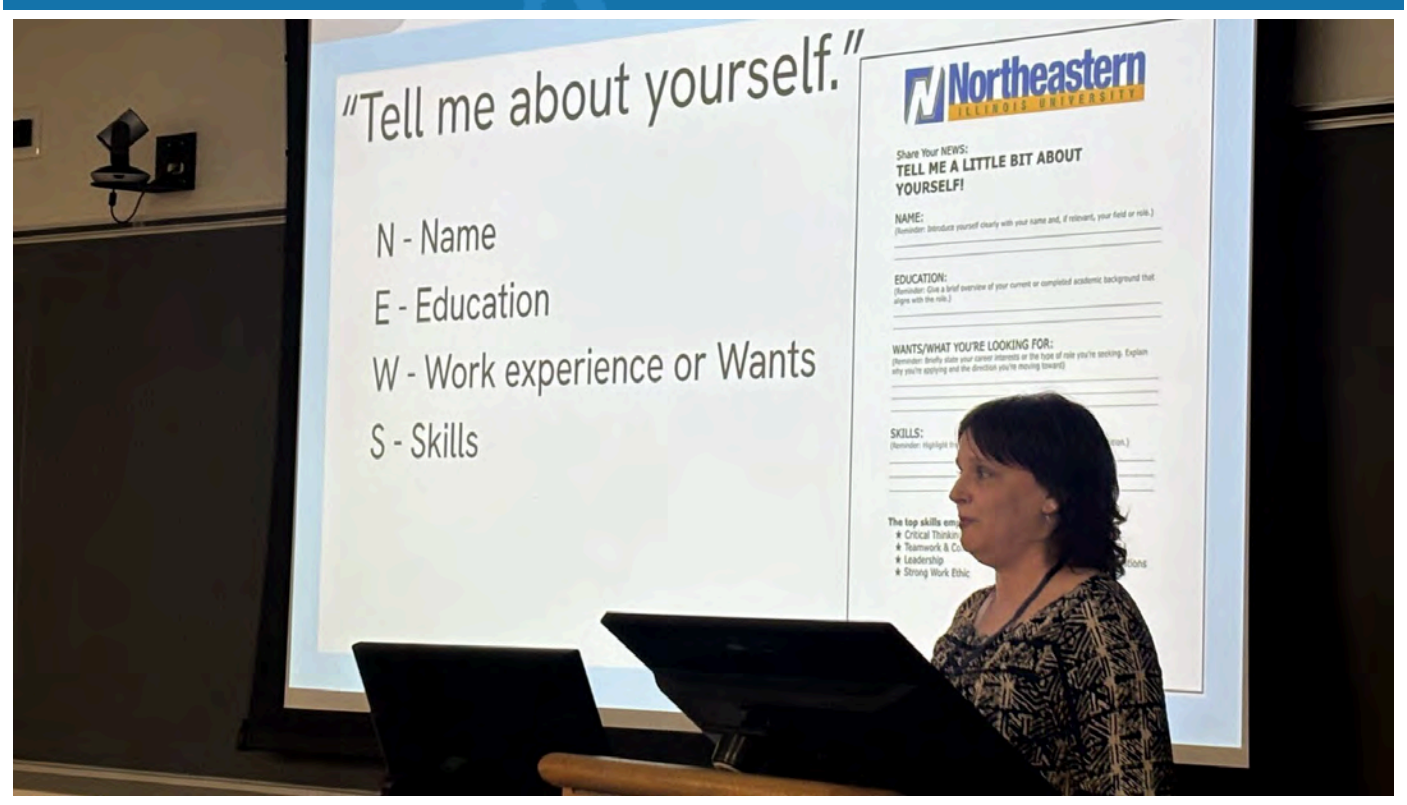
LINGUSTICS CONFERENCES

Linguistics faculty and students have had a very busy conference season—check out the photos below to see what they've been up to!

Tamara Martin (MA Linguistics student and interim director of Career Development) and Rick Hallett (Linguistics) co-presented a paper, "'Da Pope' and the teaching of the sociolinguistics of tourism," at the Linguistic Association of America (LSA) Annual Meeting in New Orleans, LA (January 8-11).

Rick Hallett also presented a paper, "¡Nuestra Misión Eres Tú!": Teaching identity construction through linguistic landscape analysis," at the same LSA Annual Meeting.



Tamara Martin (MA Linguistics student and interim director of Career Development) presented a paper, "Purpose Stories and Career Development," as part of the Wayfinding Conversations with Linguistic Faculty, Students, Staff, and Administrators at the Georgetown University Round Table (GURT), which was held March 6-8 in Washington, DC. The theme of this year's GURT was Futuring Linguistics.

At the American Association for Applied Linguistics (AAAL) conference (March 21-22), Karen Duchaj, Senior Instructor in Linguistics, presented a paper, "Assessing levels of success in imitating the Beatles' accents on film and television." Rick Hallett also presented a paper, "First an HSI, now also an AANAPISI: Identity construction in a Chicago schoolscape."

PRAIRIE JUBILEE

at the Gensburg-Markham Prairie

The Friends of Illinois Nature Preserves hosted a Prairie Jubilee at Gensburg-Markham Prairie on Saturday, March 21, bringing together students, community members, and environmental professionals for a day of stewardship and connection. Volunteers worked side-by-side to remove woody brush encroaching on the prairie, helping protect this remarkable ecosystem for future generations. Thank you to everyone who contributed their time and energy to support this incredible natural resource!

SING IT LOUD!

a Human Rights Sing-Along at the International Servant Leaders Museum

April 21, 2026 | 6:00pm

9233 Shermer Rd, Morton Grove, IL 60053

Join the NEIU Choir, instrumentalists, and the College of Arts and Sciences in partnership with the International Servant Leaders Museum for a night of singing and social justice.

Musicians will present important historical songs that showcase artists fighting back through calls to protest, songs of comfort, and music that tells the stories of the oppressed. We then invite our audience to sing along with songs of social justice, protest, and community.

There will be food and refreshments, a silent auction, and more. The event is free to attend, and all donations and proceeds from the silent auction will benefit NEIU's College of Arts and Sciences AND the International Servant Leaders Museum.

We hope to see you there!

Pre-Law Minor

The Pre-Law minor supports undergraduate students pursuing law school, as well as those interested in understanding the design and impact of our legal system. Acquire skills and knowledge relevant to legal careers, while drilling down into areas of law most fascinating to you. With course offerings across eight different NEIU programs, the Pre-Law minor will help you see our legal system in a whole new, interdisciplinary light!

Required Courses

JUST-205: Law & Society

Law permeates every aspect of our lives, permitting and banning, safeguarding and prosecuting, legitimizing and stigmatizing. This course concerns the roles that laws play in all of our daily lives. We will examine theories of law and justice, the role of legal actors and institutions in constructing and enforcing laws, the main types of law, how the law shapes and is shaped by inequality and social change, and pathways into legal careers.

PHIL-201: Logic I

Introductory course in symbolic logic, dealing with propositional calculus, quantification theory and the logic of relations and classes.

PSCI-320: Constitutional Law

The role of the Supreme Court and its impact on the constitutional development of the due process clause, civil liberties, First Amendment freedoms, and the equal protection of the law are traced with particular emphasis on the assessment of the role of the Supreme Court vis-a-vis the states and the national government in protecting and restricting civil liberties.

Plus 3 Pre-Law Electives

The three electives should be taken in at least two different programs, with eight programs to choose from!

Join the CAS Student Advisory Board!

Northeastern Illinois University's College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) has assembled a Student Advisory Board to provide the Dean's Office with insights into student experiences in the CAS and to raise issues/concerns regarding processes on campus.

The board consists of up to 15 undergraduate students (and two alternates) representing a variety of CAS majors and life experiences. The advisory group will meet approximately three times a semester with the CAS Deans and may be asked to provide feedback on urgent matters between meetings. Advisory board members are also expected to be available a few times a semester to promote the college and provide a student voice at various events during the year.

The Student Advisory Board provides students with leadership opportunities, centers students in CAS decision-making, affirms and acknowledges student experiences and allows students to help share and improve processes. Students should be able to commit to one academic year and will not be able to serve more than two years on the board.

Applications are accepted on a rolling basis and new board members will be announced every September.
