PHIL 393 - Ethics Seminar: Asian American Philosophy: Asian American philosophy is an exciting and emerging area within the philosophy of race that examines Asian as a racial identity rather than a school of thought. This course introduces key issues at the heart of Asian American Philosophy. We begin by exploring philosophical works on the metaphysics, epistemology, and phenomenology of Asian American identity. The second module explores various manifestations of anti- Asian racism driven by colonialism, xenophobia, and white supremacy. The final module focuses on the possibilities of solidarity, asking how collective resistance and mutual understanding might be forged in the face of increasing racial and global polarization.
