

Black History Month

“Our Past Reminds, Our Present Demands,
Our Future Calls...”

The theme for Black History Month 2009 is, “Our Past Reminds, Our Present Demands, Our Future Calls.” Below is a list of programs and events to take place in January and February for Black History Month.

Opening Celebration

On January 20, 2009 we will kickoff the 2009 BHM celebration with a University-wide viewing of the Presidential inauguration of Barack Obama. A live broadcast of the inauguration will be shown in the auditorium after a panel discussion. Students will express their thoughts about this momentous occasion and articulate how they will use their NEIU education to evoke change and how they plan to use this commemorative occasion as a springboard to becoming world change agents. This event is co-sponsored by the Black Caucus.

Negro Baseball League

Presented by lecturer/filmmaker/ author and entertainer Byron Motley, this event is an engaging and illuminating look at this bygone treasure that helped give birth to the modern day Civil Rights Movement in America.

This historical look back will also reveal monumental contributions of Negro players the Civil Rights Movement in America, and how those contributions reverberated throughout this period in American culture. The program will educate the campus community about the significant contributions of the Negro League and its players made in the 20th century. The program is designed to inspire us to keep the spirit of the Negro

League alive by investigating some of these rich historical elements for themselves.

Monday, February 16, 2009
Time and Place: 4:30 p.m.

Yes You Can!

For this program one actress portrays a myriad of characters as she explores the inspiring lives of three influential African-American women; Mary Macleod Bethune, Pauli Murray and Katherine Dunham. Through the course of this one hour program the audience as well as our protagonist (a girl struggling to write a ‘boring’ history report), learn about the challenges that these historical figures overcame and the impact their lives had on our own lives today. It’s an entertaining, educational, inspiring and beautiful solo performance.

Thursday, February 19, 2009
Time and Place: 1:40 p.m.
Golden Eagles Room

Annual Black History Month Awards Ceremony

This ceremony honors those persons who have made major contributions in the advancement of African Americans. Highlighted in this program are alumni that have achieved success in their individual careers as well. The BHM Awards ceremony allows the NEIU community and NEIU alumni to celebrate the accomplishments of their past, current and future leaders.
