

Professional Development Workshop
Focusing on Youth and Young Adults

Intermediate
Motivational Interviewing

Motivational Interviewing (MI) helps to reinforce the skills you need to help individuals move towards positive, healthy behavioral change. This session will build on prior training that MI practitioners-in-training bring to the session. The use of MI in multiple settings as a restorative practice, especially in education, will be examined.

This workshop will focus on augmenting the MI skills of open-ended questions, affirmation, summaries, and particularly, the skill of accurate empathic reflection. You will continue to improve your Motivational Interviewing skills by:

- Practicing role-plays and eliciting "change talk" and other commitment language
- Discovering the traps that contribute to resistance
- Reviewing options for complex reflections

MI is collaborative rather than prescriptive, honoring the client's autonomy and self-direction rather than providing advice or direction. Since 2005, the Chicago Teachers' Center has worked with schools in restorative discipline practices that use M.I., along with adventure education, as an alternative to "in-school suspension".
