Thinking about Teaching: Effective Tools for Curriculum and Instruction

Unlock best teaching practices and discover new ones! This series taps into your metacognitive skills and empowers you to think critically about curriculum and instruction practices. Offered as either a 4-day or 2-day workshop series, you will use technology to design curriculum that will engage young learners. We will focus on the needs of 3rd-12th grade teachers.

- Redesign a curriculum unit using current software including Google Apps, Glogster, Voicethread and more
- Excite and motivate learners by using new curriculum tools
- Develop the confidence and skills to refine your teaching
- Connect to a network of teachers that use technology to engage learners

These sessions will be led by

Dr. Jennifer Banas
Assistant Professor of Education
Northeastern Illinois University

Roxana Hadad
Director Math Science and Technology
Chicago Teachers' Center

Register before October 14, 2011
