Due to planning for the coronavirus pandemic, the schedule for Fall 2021 has more diverse offerings than usual. Our goal has been to build as much flexibility into the schedule as we can.

Here are some definitions:

An online course is fully asynchronous, which means students are never expected to be online with the instructor at the same time. An online course does not have a meeting time. An instructor might still request to have a virtual meeting with an individual student at a time of mutual convenience. The course still has deadlines for discussion posts, quizzes, and papers, etc. However, the course does not have a meeting time because students are never required to all meet virtually.

A remote learning course can have synchronous components when students all are online with an instructor at the same time. Therefore, remote courses still have a meeting time in NEIUport. That is, an instructor can require that all students participate in a virtual classroom through D2L or Zoom software. Remote instruction gives the instructor flexibility to have some class activities, such as lecture or discussion, happen virtually much as they do in the classroom. Yet, instructors also can run some of the course asynchronously through discussion boards, video lectures, films, etc., that students can access independently.

Neither online nor remote courses ever require students to be physically present on campus.

A Hybrid course is one that contains a face-to-face component with a remote component in order to permit flexibility in meeting patterns. So, an instructor might have a face-to-face meeting once per week and online or remote instruction once per week. Or a course might meet face-to-face more often. This format allows an instructor, for instance, to break a class of 20 students into two groups of 10. Each group might meet face to face once per week to enable social distancing. If everyone is vaccinated and the pandemic loses intensity, an instructor could have the class meet face-to-face. Hybrid classes have meeting times and places so that an instructor can require students to meet face-to-face at least part of the time. If you are interested in a course labeled hybrid, contact your professor to learn how they intend to teach the course.
