Admission to a Degree Program

The undergraduate academic record must reflect an overall grade point average of 2.75 or higher on a 4-point scale. All undergraduate work is included in the evaluation. Post-bachelor's work in graduate-level courses, if any, is expected to average 3.0 (B) or better.

Admission Categories

Most students who are admitted to NEIU graduate programs are subject only to the standard policies that apply to all graduate students at NEIU. Some students will be offered admission to the following conditional/contingent/provisional statuses. Offers of admission are extended, upon the recommendation of the graduate program and the approval of the College of Graduate Studies and Research.

Graduating Seniors: An undergraduate senior who meets all of the requirements for admission to the College and the specific degree program, and is within fifteen semester hours of completing an undergraduate degree may be granted Contingent Admission. Prior to the start of classes in the term of admission, an applicant granted contingent admission must submit an official transcript showing conferral of the degree in order to start graduate coursework. Courses used to fulfill undergraduate degree requirements will not apply to the graduate degree program of study.

Conditional Admission: Applicants lacking mastery of certain, specific program prerequisites may be allowed to obtain that mastery by completing prerequisite coursework by a specified time or point in the graduate program, as deemed appropriate by the graduate program. Such applicants will be granted admission and assigned to "conditional status." Students in conditional status will be required to complete their prerequisite work early in their graduate program, in accordance with the sequence of courses recommended by their graduate program.

Provisional Admission: Applicants who do not meet the standard academic background expected for full admission to a degree program, may, in certain cases, be granted admission to "provisional status" upon the recommendation of the graduate program and the approval of the College of Graduate Studies and Research. Admission to provisional status may result from an applicant having:

1. A degree from an institution for which academic credit equivalency cannot be established, or one that issues transcripts with ungraded academic records.
2. An undergraduate cumulative grade point average that is below 2.75.
3. An erratic undergraduate academic record.

Readmission: students who do not register for courses within three consecutive semesters (summer included) will be inactivated and must apply for readmission.

Notification of Admission: The Graduate Admissions Office will inform students in writing of the admissions decision. Students who are admitted should contact their program advisor within two weeks of receiving notification of admission (the advisor's name is identified in the letter of admission), register for the courses they plan to take in their first term, and participate in orientation programs as specified by the college and/or program.

Admission Acceptance/Deferral: Students are expected to enroll in the term to which they are admitted, as the application is valid only for that term. A matriculation deferral for up to one year will be considered if requested in writing. Requests for deferral should be submitted to the Graduate Admissions Office.
